

CLASSES TO BEGIN NEXT MONDAY; ACUTE TEACHER SHORTAGE FELT

J. J. Fogarty, acting principal of Hunt High School since J. T. Light's termination, officially announced that the high school will open its doors to the students on August 21.

It was also revealed that Huntville and Stafford Elementary Schools would open on September 4.

Asked for instructions concerning programs, registration, etc., Fogarty indicated that all returning students must go to their last semester's core class rooms where they will receive a copy of their respective programs. All new students, regardless of whether they registered or not, must go to the guidance office to plan their programs.

The time schedule will remain the same as that of last semester; the tardy bell rings at 8:20.

Block 8 YPC Dance Slated for Aug. 24

For the boys who will be leaving their civilian lives to enter into the army on August 25, the Blk. 8 YPC and the C. A. will sponsor a dance next Thursday, August 24.

A couple only affair, dancing will be held from 8 to 12 p. m. Bids may be available from any of the Blk. 8 members, and the Central Community Activities office.

Fogarty said that approximately twelve new teachers have been added to the faculty to replace vacancies created by the departure of former teachers. Following is a tentative list of teachers and their respective departments:
