2 Nisei Soldiers Favor Stiff Peace

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—According to an Associated Press dispatch appearing in Monday's issue of the Los Angeles Times, two Japanese American soldier advocated in a Blue Network broadcast that the Allied nations should take

Myer Speaks To Seattle Civic Group

Speaking before a luncheon meeting sponsored by Mayor William F. Devin's civic unity committee at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, National Director Dillon S. Myer, predicted that public opinion on the West Coast would shortly swing overwhelmingly in favor allowing Japanese, released by the army from relocation centers, to settle wherever they wish, the Seattle P-I reported.

C. D. Doyle, executive director of the Central Labor Council in Seattle, clashed with Myer during the question period that followed the WRA director's plea for "fair play" towards the Japanese Americans.

"I have my grandfather's discharge papers from the Civil War. I guess I'm an American. But I am unalterably opposed to the return of the Japs at this particular time and the majority of the 200,000 people in our council feel the same way. I've talked to soldiers and sailors and they want to know how we can let the Japs come back here at this time. We better make some provision for our boys' return from the armed forces instead of debating this issue," the P-I reported.

In answer Myer said:

"I repeat that the decision to allow the return of people of Japanese ancestry was the military's, not ours. But if 200,000 people feel the way you do, there is still lots of work to be done. When you talked to soldiers and sailors, I hope you told them that you were talking about Americans, not Japs as you call them. I hope you told them, if they have not been overseas, that there are 17,600 boys of Japanese ancestry fighting in our armed forces. I'm not worried about the boys at Iwo Jima and in Italy. They've seen boys of Japanese ancestry spill their blood and they think they are fighting for the American way.

"I don't believe that 200,000 people feel as you do—or would if they had the full facts."
