Biography of Takuji Yamashita

Yamashita family

Takuji Yamashita was born at 859 Mukainada, Yanozaki-village, Nishiuwa-county, Ehime prefecture, Japan (now Yawatahama-city, Ehime), on October 25, 1874. His father was Urakichi Yamashita [1848- 1927] and his mother was Hisa Yamashita. Urakichi was said to be engaged in producing dry seafood and running seafood business around between 1880s and 1910s. For a time, he went to Korea Peninsula for his business and became prosperous. Takuji was the second son of Urakichi. According to Koseki (the census register), Takuji' s elder brother Jirousaku (renamed to Urakichi jr. in 1924) and his wife Tsuruyo immigrated to the United States in 1920s. Although the date of immigration is unknown, Urakichi jr. died at 916 Dearbon St., Seattle on December 9, 1934 and Tsuruyo died at Valley Hospital, Puyallup, Pierce Co., WA on August 6, 1928. Their son Sadakatsu Yamashita also stayed in 1920s and 1930s in Seattle.

Takuji' s marriage

The census register shows that Takuji reported his marriage with Ito Nakagawa on August 21, 1902 at Yanozaki-village office. Ito Nakagawa was born at Mottoigi, Uwajima, Ehime prefecture, on May 24, 1881. She was the first daughter of Shikatarou Nakagawa and Ofuyo Nakagawa. As the Nakagawa was a very wealthy grain trade merchant family, Ito' s father and her elder brother Shikatarou Jr. were said to financially support her when she immigrated and went back and forth for a few times in 1900s.

Takuji' s education

In 1881 Ehime prefectural Government enacted Regulation for Primary Education in Ehime. Under this regulation, Takuji Yamashita began to study at Primary School in 1882 when he was 7 years old. As in 1887 Japanese Government enacted the ordinances for School Education, Takuji transferred to the first school year of Yawatahama Secondary School and finished at age 16 years and 8 months, in 1891.

Takuji had received primary and secondary education in transition of Japanese modernization. His records of Yawatahama Secondary School in 1890 and 1891 show us that he learned not only reading, writing, calligraphy, mathematics, geography, history, science, painting, physics, music, morals, but also English. He always got excellent marks at every course, especially mathematics and science.

He continued to study at Uwajima Meirinkan School in Ehime prefecture and finished at age 17 years, 7 months in 1892. Uwajima Meirinkan School was established in 1891 as a kind of private high school with educational tradition since 1784 of Edo era.

As the date of handwritten will is June 9, 1893, he was supposed to depart to the United States in 1893. Although the Yamashita-Imazumi family has no details about his circumstances of that time, according to handwritten will, it is sure that his adventurous ambition was one of strong motivation to go abroad.

After he arrived at the United States, he stayed in Tacoma for about six years. He studied at Tacoma High School and finished it in 1900. He moved to Seattle and attended School of Law, University of Washington from 1900 to 1902. When he graduated from University of Washington, Bachelor of Law was conferred to him on June 19, 1902.

Takuji's life before World War II

Although Takuji received the naturalization paper from the Pierce County Superior Court and passed the state examination for the bar in May 1902, the Supreme Court of Washington rejected Takuji's petition for admission to the bar and voided his naturalization certificate on October 22, 1902. He kept his legal fighting on trial for twenty years till his failure of appeal to the Alien Land Law at the United States Supreme Court in 1922.

He worked for his family as lodging house manager until 1904, and then restaurant manager in Seattle until 1914. He moved to Bremerton to operate his new business. In Bremerton, at first he became Togo Hotel manager, and also Rainier Hotel manager, and then a proprietor of People's Cafe. He ran an oyster business around Silverdale in the 1920s and 1930s.

Takuji and Ito had six children as follows;

Minoru (male)	1905.12.31 - 1921.4.24
Haruko (female)	1906.11.28 - 1996.6.19
Aya (female)	1908.9.29 - 1926.12.8
MasaMartha	1910.2.21 - 1957.6.21
Joe (male)	1911.8.15 - 1915.2.19
George (male)	1917.2.14 - 1925.6.1

According to the census register, first son Minoru and first daughter Haruko were born in Yawatahama (Takuji's original house), but it is uncertain whether Minoru might have been born in Japan or in the United States. Haruko was the only child who was raised in Japan. She was said to be born and raised at Ito Nakagawa's family until the age of three; then she grew up with Takuji's father Urakichi Yamashita in Yawatahama. She was expected to go to the United States after her graduation from Secondary School, but Haruko got married to Ichimatsu Imaizumi in Yawatahama in 1926. She never went to the United States.

The other children Aya, Masa and Joe were born in Seattle. George was born in Bremerton. Takuji lost four children because of illness. Minoru died at the hospital in Riverton, King County, Washington. Joe, Aya and George died in Bremerton.

Takuji returned to Japan temporarily a few times. It is certain that Takuji went home with Ito and Masa when his father Urakichi passed away on February 26, 1927. They stayed in Japan till May, 1927 and returned to Seattle on June 6, 1927.

Takuji's life during and after World War II

Takuji and Ito were evacuated to an interment camp during World War II. Before their evacuation, they disposed of all their properties and even Ito's diary which she had written since her arrival in the United States.

They were interned at Tule Lake in California on July 24th, 1942. They moved to Manzaner on September 6, 1942. Then they transferred to Minidoka, Idaho on February 26, 1943. They spent all their interned life with their daughter Masa Yamashita-Nakao and her husband, Yonezo Nakao. Takuji and Ito left Minidoka on May 17, 1945.

After World War II, Takuji and Ito lived in Seattle with their daughter Mr. & Mrs. Masa Yamashita-Nakao. Takuji and Ito were devout Christians and active members of Japanese Baptist Church that is at 160 Broadway Ave., Seattle.

As Masa died after a long illness on June 21, 1957, Takuji and Ito decided to go back to Japan to live with their daughter Haruko's family. Haruko was the only child alive and lived at the original place where Takuji was born.

Takuji and Ito left Seattle on July 27, 1957 and arrived at Tokyo on July 30 1957 by airplane. They lived peacefully until Takuji died on March 18, 1959, and Ito died on October 23, 1969.

They are buried together at one of the Yamashita family graves which is a ten-minute-walk from Takuji's original house, Mukainada, Yawatahama-city.

Nine children and twenty grandchildren of Haruko who were born in Japan are descendants of Takuji Yamashita.

Microfilm Inventory / Guide

Takuji Yamashita Photo Collection consists of four series:

- 1) Photo collection, including five photo albums and 31 individual photographs,
- 2) Certificates and Records of Schools,
- 3) Handwritten Will by Takuji Yamashita,
- 4) Passport of Mr. & Mrs. Takuji Yamashita issued on May 5, 1927 by Japanese Government.

Passport and the photo collection, except 4 photos, were brought back by Takuji Yamashita from Seattle to Yawatahama, Japan in July, 1957. After his death on March 18, 1959, these were kept by his daughter Haruko Yamashita-Imaizumi at their house where Takuji was born and died.

Haruko also had kept the Handwritten Will and School Certificates and Records there. After she died in June, 1996, her first son Masahiro Imaizumi who lives at this house in Yawatahama kept four albums, Certificates and records of Schools, and Passport. Her second son Takuji Yamashita jr. who is a formal descendant of Takuji Yamashita, kept one album and the handwritten will at his house in Fujisawa-city, Kanagawa prefecture. Four photographs were taken in Japan after Takuji's final homecoming to Japan. Three of four photos were taken by Kihachirou Kobayashi (Takuji's first granddaughter Mitsuko's husband), when Takuji and Ito arrived at Tokyo International Airport on July 30, 1957 and at Tokyo Station on August 1, 1957. One photo was taken in winter 1957 or 1958 at Takuji's room in his house where he lived after he returned from Seattle. These photographs are held by Tazuko Kobayashi in Tokyo.

In total, Photo Collection includes 881 photographs; Album A has 58 photos, Album B has 76, Album C has 425, Album D has 115, Album E has 176 and 31 photos.

The passport was issued by the Japanese Government on May 5, 1927. This passport was for both of Takuji and Ito Yamashita to re-immigrate to the United States after his trip for the funeral of Takuji's father Urakichi Yamashita who passed away on February 26, 1927. This passport has three kinds of stamps; 1) Immigration Visa for Takuji and Ito issued by American Consulate at Kobe, Japan on May 18, 1927; 2) Admission to immigrate at Seattle on June 6, 1927; 3) Returning to Japan on July 30, 1957.

Takuji Yamashita also brought back the book named Minidoka Interlude, and his Certificate of Degree, Bachelor of Law conferred by University of Washington on June 19, 1902, but these are omitted from this microfilm.
