DESCRIPTION With the creation of the University Hospital in 1958 came the problem of the university's handling of income derived from patients. Under Dean George Aagaard a plan was developed (1959) which combined physician salary with a designated amount of professional fees for a maximum total. (In 1976 an incentive component was added which supplemented salaries an additional 30%-50%.) The original organizational structure was that of a partnership, with thirteen departmental partnerships. Later (c. 1969) this arrangement was unified as the Associated University Physicians, and subsequently as the Association of University Physicians (1984-1989) and University of Washington Physicians (1989 - ). These records document the creation of the Associated University Physicians out of the previous partnership organizational structure. They include both correspondence and subject files.
