

BALTIMORE, January 5.

Another Insurrection at Guadaloupe.

Arrived yesterday, sch'r Exchange, captain Vibert, from Guadaloupe. Left it on the 11th, at which time Point-Petre and the whole of the island was in confusion, another insurrection having taken place there, which, had it not been fortunately discovered at the moment, would have involved the total destruction of every white and mulatto in the island.

The rebels in the present insurrection were the country blacks against the whites and mulattoes. The former, having lent a helping hand in the revolution which had just been effected, expected a total emancipation of the yellow general, Pelage, they had determined to achieve their own liberty, thro' the blood of Pelage and his party. For this purpose, 11,000 were to have been organised on the night succeeding that on which the plot was discovered—to have burnt the towns—and to have murdered every man, woman and child of Pelage's party. At that very moment only when it could possibly have been defeated, was the plot discovered by a black woman, who was the kept mistress of a white man, when four of the ring-leaders were apprehended.

Notwithstanding the bloody project had been discovered, and for the present warded off, yet every thing was apprehended from the vengeance and ferocity of the blacks, and all was in confusion. In such haste was the island deserted by those who could get off, that the Exchange came away on the 11th with only 2 hands on board. An English and a French frigate were at that time off the island cautioning vessels not to go in.

Accounts had also been received that general M'Donald, with 18,000 men, had sailed for the windward, and gen. Rochambeau, with 40,000, for the leeward islands.
